

ALL STRIKE TOGETHER

Defend public services, jobs and pensions For a 24-hour public sector general strike

"We face a defining battle for our movement. Real leadership is required, based on a strategy of no cuts, and no concessions to pension robbery. We must build the kind of widespread industrial action capable of defeating and bringing down this government."

John McNally, PCS vice-president, personal capacity

"It was the threat of joint trade union action in 2005 that forced the then Labour government to retreat over their pensions attacks. Once again, we need joint action to pressure ministers to retreat and negotiate a serious agreement rather than impose a pension robbery."

Martin Powell-Davies, NUT national executive, personal capacity
