Real Jobs not Mickey Mouse schemes

Whilst the fat cats and rich bankers whose gambling caused the economic crisis are being rewarded, there are around million young people who cannot find a job. The few jobs that are available are usually McJobs which are insecure and pay low wages. New Labour, the Tories and the Liberals are in competition as to who can get away with slashing the most jobs and services.

Scrap Fees - No to Education Cuts

There is also the threat of even higher university fees, which Mandelson has now added to with his slash and burn attempt to cut university funding - students will be expected to pay more but will get less in return. Huge cutbacks are already being made at Leeds University, where £35m in cuts are planned including around 700 job losses.

College students against Deloittes

Private sector companies are increasingly being brought into run education in their own interests. At Park Lane College, Deloitte's are now running an Employability Skills course, which is compulsory for many students. The course is designed to break the resistance of young people to poverty wages and appalling conditions, and includes lessons on how to sack people and students doing presentations on the virtues of Deloittes itself.

Youth Fightback - Join our Demo

If we are united we can fight back for a decent future. Massive strikes by workers to defend jobs combined with action from young people can force the government and councils to retreat from their cuts policies. The bin workers strike has shown that if we are united we can defend well paid jobs from employers who want a timid and poverty-stricken workforce.

If the bankers and the bosses have been bailed out and can hold onto their bonuses, why cant the government and councillors bail out workers and young people by providing decent jobs, training or free education for all? Youth Fight for Jobs demands that young people have a decent future.
