

nationalshopstewardsnetwork

NSSN TUC Congress rally FIGHT TOGETHER TO GET THE TORIES OUT!

In the year of the 150th anniversary of the Trade Union Congress, the National Shop Stewards Network (NSSN) is again organising a rally before the start of TUC congress.

Delegates will be meeting as the Tory Government lurches from crisis to crisis. The Tories are divided - but they can still stagger on, because the establishment fears how a Corbyn government could raise workers' expectations.

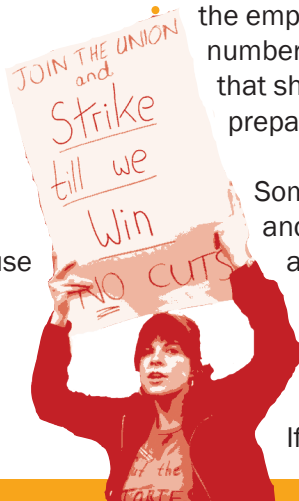

But the trade union movement has to be to the fore in building the mass action that can force them out. Already this year, we have seen strikes by university lecturers force back the employers, and a whole number of militant disputes that show workers are prepared to fight.

Some of these rank-and-file union reps and activists who have been taking action will be speaking at our rally alongside leaders from fighting unions. If the unions took action together, it could put huge pressure on May and co.

The NSSN has a proud record of supporting workers and building solidarity. We also have a history of fighting for the biggest coordination of action across the unions to take on Tory austerity and the bosses' offensive.

Sunday 9 September at 1pm, Manchester
Mechanics Institute
Conference Centre,
Princess Street,
Manchester M1 6DD

shopstewards.net

The NSSN is supported by the following national trade unions

